| 1. Assist members to implement new legislation | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 2. Build capacity in member organisations through the IMPEL Review Initiatives | <input type="checkbox"/> |
| 3. Work on 'problem areas' of implementation identified by IMPEL and the European Commission | <input checked="" type="checkbox"/> |

2.3 Why is this work needed? (background, motivations, aims, etc.)

The scale of wildlife trafficking is such that it now poses a genuine threat to the survival of some of nature's most emblematic species. As a result, tigers, rhinoceros, elephants, and even species of timber such as rosewood are severely at risk of extinction.

Wildlife trafficking has become a billion-euro criminal industry dominated by organized criminal groups. It is all the more attractive as the risk of detection is low, penalties are often insignificant, whereas the profits are comparable to arms and human trafficking.

Though the countries more affected are those with more biodiversity and generally outside the EU, Europe too is directly concerned and affected. Endangered birds and reptiles are offered for sale in the European Union, protected timber and ivory have been sneaked through harbours, and highly endangered glass eels from Europe are ending up for sale in Asia.

So far, EU efforts to address the problem have focused on implementing the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora and advocating for strict global rules, supporting large scale conservation efforts, and engaging in regional or multilateral initiatives to curb wildlife trafficking and poaching.

The implementation of the EU Action Plan against Wildlife Trafficking will require broad support, not just from the EU institutions, but also the EU agencies – Europol and Eurojust –, the Member States and their relevant agencies, the EU Delegations and Member States Embassies in third countries.

That EU Action Plan demonstrates that the EU is ready to live up to international expectations and commitments, and that it is raising the level of its ambition as regards action against the illegal trade in wildlife. The Action Plan is a major contribution towards the Sustainable Development Goals set under the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development agreed by heads of state at a UN summit in September 2015. Goal 15, which relates to biodiversity, sets the target of "tak[ing] urgent action to end poaching and trafficking of protected species of flora and fauna, and address[ing] both demand and supply of illegal wildlife products

Nevertheless, the EU and its Member States need to address the problem together. EU-wide rules regulating the trade in wildlife have been in place in all Member States since 1983, implementing CITES, and the Commission issued a recommendation on enforcement in 2007.

However, reports reveal significant differences in how the Member States implement and enforce these shared rules. This represents a major risk; criminals can easily exploit this state of affairs by diverting trade routes accordingly, as a number of cases in recent years have shown. It has also emerged, in various reports and during the stakeholder consultation, that lack of awareness and political engagement are also major obstacles to combating wildlife trafficking effectively.

A joint commitment by the EU and its Member States, in the form of an Action Plan, to taking a series of measures, implementing shared international commitments and acknowledging at a political level the importance of tackling the problem, represents a way to ensure more even EU-wide enforcement. It will help boost the EU's credibility worldwide when it demands that its global partners take stronger action against wildlife trafficking.

To achieve those goals it will be essential to work together closely between the Member States, with stakeholders, including civil society organizations and relevant business sectors, on many specific measures to make maximum use of the available expertise and knowledge and ensure maximum impact.

And one important action will be to analyze the different good practices to implement the EU tools to tackled wildlife trafficking and to build an orientation guide that can be share and used by all Member States.

2.4 Desired outcome of the work (what do you want to achieve? What will be better / done differently as a result of this project?)

A general goal of the project is to build a reference guide to a core group of implementing enforcement authorities of the EU Member States that enable them to successfully tackle the problem of the wildlife trafficking.

That includes:

- exchange of solutions concerning implementation problems;
- facilitating implementation and interpretation of available tools;
- joint inspections;
- web applications;
- identifying implementation gaps;
- overview on the approaches in different European countries
- cooperation between actors from the compliance chain, also on defining consistent solutions for implementation problems.

The project team and participants of a workshop will work on these issues to come up with good practice examples for implementation.

2.5 Does this project link to any previous or current IMPEL projects? (state which projects and how they are related)

3. Structure of the proposed activity

3.1 Describe the activities of the proposal (what are you going to do and how?)

Priority topics from the issues described in 2.4 will be chosen by the project group for the development of solutions and guidance. These topics will also be discussed and developed further during a workshop of the project but will mainly come from Priority(ies) 2 (Implementing and enforcing existing rules and combating organized wildlife crime more effectively) and Objectives 2.2 (Increase capacity to combat wildlife trafficking of all parts of the enforcement chain and the judiciary) and 2.3 (Fight organized wildlife crime more effectively) from EU Action Plan against Wildlife Trafficking.

Guidance and best practice examples that have been already developed will be presented and discussed and will be put into a form that is useful for the guidance book.

Guidance to best practices of implementation that lead to the constitution of solid cases to be presented to court, of administrative, civil and criminal offences”

There will be conducted also back to back with the workshop and the project meetings joint inspections of a small sub-group of the project team to the main issues dealt within this project in the host country.

The guidance will be a first approach on good practices for better implementation of the EU Action Plan against Wildlife Trafficking. Most probably this project will continue in the future to further develop the guidance, also addressing specific areas of Wildlife Trafficking.

3.2 Describe the products of the proposal (what are you going to produce in terms of output / outcome?)

Outputs:

- Guidance book with good practices for better implementation of the EU Action Plan against Wildlife Trafficking, taking into account:
 - Results from real joint inspections
 - IMPEL member examples
 - Inspection tools
 - Minimum extent and resources for inspections
 - Results from a technical workshop

Outcome:

Reduction of the implementation gaps and a level playing field within IMPEL member states.

3.3 Describe the milestones of this proposal (how will you know if you are on track to complete the work on time?)

- Development of the work program 2018: January/February 2018
- Finalising work program at the first project group meeting: March 2018
- Work on topics: April/May 2018
- Preparation of the workshop: June 2018
- Joint inspection: back to back with the project group meetings and the workshop
- Workshop: country approach / good practices / related projects: September 2018
- Development of guidance and good practice examples: until November 2018

3.4 Risks (what are the potential risks for this project and what actions will be put in place to mitigate these?)

The first risk is that only a few countries collaborate within this activity. The strategic approach for actively encourage and support passive members was used to mitigate this risk.

The second risk is that only inspectors will be members of the project team. The results will invite more stakeholders to participate in the project

The third risk is that outputs of the project are only recognized by a small group of active project members. Communication of results shall be used to mitigate this risk.
